

High-level Architecture of website

The home page will contain content describing its core services and benefits as well as contain room for 7 banner ads, and the search engine for buyers to use. The search engine will have the person choose which category of items they are looking for, than country, state/province, city, make, model, mileage if applicable, price (all fields will have the option of selecting all for the search under that specific field). A buyer may also search by ID number if he knows the ID number or if he has recorded the ID number from a previous search and does not want to have a general search again.

The sellers page contains seller services information & once chosen the seller can place up to 10 pictures & video (up to three minutes) for each item. Once all information is place including pictures (which must be able to all caption rates and format them automatically).
